WHEELING, West Virginia, September 2.—(Special to The Advertiser)—With fifteen bodies already recovered and a number of outlying districts yet to be heard from, it seems certain this afternoon that the death list in last night's cloudburst which flooded sections of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, would exceed forty.

It is believed that gasoline caused the explosion, but whether this was started by dynamite perhaps never will be learned. The building was occupied by a number of Italian men, women and children, none of whom could be found this morning.

WILSON OPENS FIRE ON THE COLONEL

Says He Is False Pretender in His Claim to Be for the People.

TARIFF THE FOREMOST ISSUE

Nation Cannot Commit Economic Suicide Without Also Doing Murder.

WOODROW WILSON.

(By Federal Wireless Telegraph.)
NEW YORK, September 2.—(Special to The Advertiser)—Charges of false pretense were aimed against Colonel Roosevelt and the Progressive party today by Governor Woodrow Wilson in his first speech of the campaign in Western New York.

Governor Wilson charged that Roosevelt and the Progressives, while proclaiming their sympathy with the people, were pledged to keep up the tariff and to perpetuate the trusts. Most of his speech was devoted to Roosevelt, President Taft being ignored.

The drift of Wilson's address was that the tariff was the overwhelming issue of the campaign. He asserted that if the trusts get the power, industry will languish, wages will be lowered and employment will become scarce.

Roosevelt Heeled for War.

(By Federal Wireless Telegraph.)
NEW YORK, September 2.—(Special to The Advertiser)—Armed with arguments and statistics to support his letter to Chairman Clapp of the senate campaign contribution investigation committee, in which he repudiated testimony given before that body by John D. The new mill will cover slightly less ground than the old, but will be three stories high, and not only better adapted to making sugar of a lower cost of production, but much more fireproof. The old building had a great deal of timber in it, and was a dangerous building.

HUNDREDS PAY RESPECTS TO QUEEN

Homage and Courtesy to Her Who Once Reigned Crowned Monarch of Hawaii.

SCENE A RIGHT ROYAL ONE

Prince and Princesses Assist in Function—The Queen in Good Health.

Under a canopy of Hawaiian flowers and greenery, surrounded by her relatives, Prince and Princess Kalaniana'ole and Princess Kawananakoa, Her Majesty, Queen Liliuokalani, yesterday opened wide the doors of her residence, Washington Place, and received the congratulations of those who hold her in their hearts as yet Queen, and of the public generally, the occasion being the celebration of her seventy-fourth birthday.

Eight hundred or more passed through the gates and up the beautiful driveway to the home of Queen Liliuokalani to pay their respects to the lady who was once Monarch of Hawaii. Shafts of sunlight filtered through the palm leaves and glistened on the exquisitely colored gowns, creating a brilliant scene, appropriate for a Queen's reception.

Robed in rare black lace over lavender satin, carrying an arm bouquet of deep purple iris and wearing a crown of diamonds, the Queen, with royal dignity and grace, received the homage of the Hawaiians, who more than usual for some years displayed their love and respect for their old-time ruler. The Hawaiians, as a rule, knelt and kissed the hand held out to them. Others bowed low, even the many malihinis who came out of curiosity being impressed with the kindly dignity of her whom all Hawaii now loves to honor.

Being somewhat fatigued, the Queen did not shake hands with all the guests who were presented to her by Col. C. F. Jaume, as has been her custom at former receptions, only extending her hand to her most intimate friends, and to those of her former subjects who bowed and wished to kiss her finger tips.

Princess David Kawananakoa, Prince Kalaniana'ole, and Princess Kalaniana'ole attended the Queen, while the guests were presented. Mr. Dominis acted as usher and his aides were Hon. E. K. Lilikalani, J. H. Harbottle and Hiram Kolomoku. The reception room was a veritable fairy land of red roses and ferns, which were used for festoons and decorations throughout the house.

Following the custom of early court days, three kahili-bearers stood behind Her Majesty supporting the imposing feathered symbols of rank. Kawohi Kalei Heana and Nakanealeha were the bearers and so straight and still, they held their emblems in their nerveless grasps that they gave the impression, at the first glance, of being carved of stone.

Over the subdued hum of voices in the receiving rooms, came the plaintive melodies of the Islands played by the Hawaiian band, under the palm trees on the lawn. After being presented to Her Majesty, the guests crossed the grounds to a cottage at the left where two desks had been arranged on the lanai and the visitors wrote their names in the visitors' book.

Coats-of-arms of many nations, paintings of Princess Bernice Pauahi Bishop, Princess Ruth and Colonel Prendergast and a gilded bust of King Kalaniana'ole, particularly attracted the tourists who had called upon the Queen.

Among the conspicuous guests were Governor and Mrs. Frear, Admiral Ross, U. S. N., Judge Sanford B. Dole, Hon. W. O. Smith, Bishop Libbert, Consul Canavaro of Portugal, Hon. Cecil Brown, Mayor J. J. Fera and a number of officers from the Army and Navy.

The Princess Kawananakoa was a magnificent figure in a gown of fine black lace over cream satin. She wore a bow of terminal velvet at her belt and a picture hat of black covered with massive white plumes.

The Princess Kalaniana'ole was resplendent in cobwebby lace of black over lemon colored satin.

Mrs. Frear wore a striking gown of elderberry color, made of soft clinging silk. It was ornamented with frills of the same material.

Among the names on the registers were Messdames W. C. Cowles, J. A. Palmer, J. B. Shredly, W. Neville, Lillie H. Gay, John F. Bowler, E. S. Cunha, H. F. Dillingham, Rosamond Brassy, Carl B. Andrews, M. E. Bristol, E. Brown Jordan, R. H. Allen, Charles W. Kent, Ulrick Thompson, John Bowler, W. A. Bryan, B. D. Smith, Otto Arnold, Frank W. Latta, Robert O'Neal, C. F. Wood, C. H. Brown, Clement Parker, H. M. Cook, Henry Brethel, H. G. Matheson, R. D. Matheson, M. Castle, H. F. Wickham, W. A. Brown, C. H. Brown, A. Murray, G. H. Dault, F. B. Davis, L.
